Wiretap 7.05: Stadtluft macht frei!, 2001

V2_ Organisatie, Rotterdam, The Netherlands, 18th May 2001

An informal evening talk on gentrification, the urban fabric, the malleability of the term freedom. This event was put in motion by Nat Muller, then events coordinator (and probably other things) at V2_. Mute compiled the group of speakers, responding to the idea of giving a London perspective on the topic. The aim was to look at theory and practice, hence later collaborators in The London Particular: David Panos and Benedict Seymour were accompanied by free wireless pioneer James Stevens of Consume.net. Mute's Pauline van Mourik Broekman and Josephine Berry also took part. Read the original invite
