Unrest in France (Libcom)

ByLibcom

The Libcom.org site is running a special English-language section on the mass resistance among French students, workers and unemployed to the new ultraprecarizing youth labour law ('CPE'). Libcom calls the coverage a blog but it's actually a regularly updated compilation of all available material from mainstream as well as combatant sources.

There's little point in putting a sample here, as the most urgent content is newly added all the time (creating a provisional history of the struggle as a by-product). Look at it here:

before the continuous present passes you by.
