Cinema Action thought of their films as primarily 'triggers' for discussion. John Porter even encouraged the audience to talk through his Super 8 films as shown at COG on 4th February. Szczelkun is interested in how culture can be more or less democratic.

If the core purpose of culture is to continually evaluate our totality how does this work in relation to experimental venues such as COG? What attitude do we take to the essential silences in our rituals of knowledge? How do we kick out the jams?

Consensii of selection - public rituals of observance - responsive and reactive discourses
